Customers are asking!

What is LinearB's Framework for measuring AI Effectiveness?

How do we know how much code is written by devs vs. AI toolings?

How do we know if AI is actually leading to more productivity?

We need to present our AI adoption and how it's affecting productivity to Leadership. How do we make this simple to show (not technical people)?

Is our AI effective? Are we moving faster and how is the quality?

What is the ROI of our AI?

We are testing multiple AI tools? How do we know which one to choose?

Philosophy

The adoption journey is a marathon, not a race.

Think in mindsets, not headcounts. Developers fall on a spectrum between skeptical and embracing. Find both ends within your organization and understand their viewpoints.

Starting line

Low context, iterating on outputs, delayed technical debt, and low resulting domain expertise.

Finish line

High context, iterating on inputs, preventing technical debt, and high resulting domain expertise.

Throughput & Quality are the true signals.

Not lines of code. Not time saved. What matters is: are you shipping more value, with fewer mistakes?

Throughput alone ≠ value

Lines of code never truly maps to business impact.

Quality drives throughput

Context matters. Inputs shape outcomes. Encouraging better context engineering is as important as measuring output volume.

Throughput & quality are a balancing act

Moving faster is only a win if quality keeps up and you're going in the right direction.

Track value delivered, not hours eliminated.

AI ROI = features shipped, bugs avoided, and developer energy focused on high-leverage work.

Adoption

Proposed ROI

Impact

Real ROI

Adoption

Quantitative

AI Tools Adoption

Track developer adoption of AI productivity tools through organizational GenAI data analysis.

- LinearB AI code review adoption
- GenAI usage metrics

Qualitative

Direct Feedback via Surveys

Gather team insights on AI tool adoption:

- Implementation process effectiveness
- Daily workflow and productivity impact
- Adoption spectrum

Impact

Quantitative

AI Tools Impact

Measure the tangible effects of AI tool adoption across key engineering performance areas.

- Coding processes and efficiency
- Code quality and defect reduction
- Velocity and delivery throughput
- Developer productivity

Qualitative

Survey Insights

Capture developer perspectives and experiences through structured team feedback collection.

- AI Tools Adoption Sentiment
- Perceived Impact
- Adoption expansion recommendations

How?

GenAI Adoption & Usage

Daily Active Users

122.5 Users per month

- What: Adoption by Org, Group, & Team
- Why: Is adoption growing or dropping?

Suggested Lines Of Code

10.7k LOC per month

- What: Amount of code suggested by GenAI
- Why: Is the GenAI tool suggesting a sufficient amount of valuable code

Lines Accepted

1.5k LOC per month

- What: Amount of code suggestions, accepted by the developer
- Why: Is the code being suggested valuable? Do our developers find it valuable?

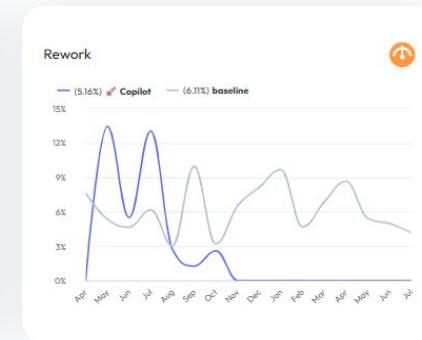

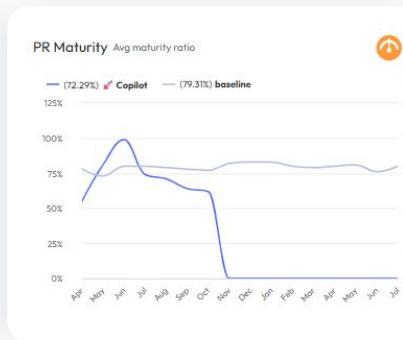

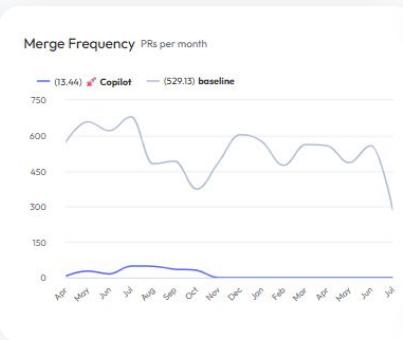

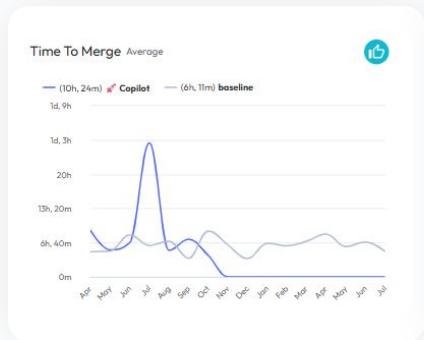

Developer Surveys

- What: Survey questions sent through Slack/MS Teams on developer sentiment for GenAI
- Why: You need to hear from developers if the tool is perceived as valuable to them? If not, then it will not be utilized

The screenshot shows the LinearB AI Measurement Framework interface. On the left is a sidebar with icons for Home, Productivity, Teams, Projects, Analytics, Settings, and Help. The main area has a title bar "Productivity / Survey" and tabs for "Dashboard" and "Management". A date range "Q1 2025" is selected. Below this is a section titled "All participants" with a list of teams: Veterans, ClientSystems, QA Team, Lorem Ipsum, Infra, Monsters, Mobile Team, and Dolor Amet. The "Veterans" team is highlighted with a green circle. To the right, a card titled "Tooling and platforms highlight for Veterans Team" shows a rating of 3.5. It lists three survey questions with corresponding horizontal bar charts and quotes from respondents.

Question	Rating	Response Count
1. I'm pleased with the speed and reliability of Our company's CI/CD tools.	4.27	20
2. Hi'm content with the level of test coverage on my team.	4.40	20
3. My team struggles to justify investments in improving developer experience.	4.00	20

Quantitative Impact

- What: total time it takes for an approved pull request (PR) to be merged into the main branch. This metric provides a comprehensive view of how quickly approved changes are finalized and integrated.
- Why: Are the areas in which GenAI is subject to improve, actually improving?
- What: Tracks how often teams or individuals successfully merge PRs into the main branch across all repositories within a given timeframe.
- Why: Are we delivering more frequently?
- What: a measure of how refined and well-prepared a pull request (PR) is when it is submitted for review. It assesses the extent of changes made by the developer after the initial submission to determine how much work was required post-submission to address feedback, fix issues, or improve the PR.
- Why: Is GenAI helping our developers write better quality code?
- What: Changes to recent code, defined as any code modified within the last 21 days. Rework is expected during the iterative development process—for example, when code is updated after peer reviews or internal testing. However, consistently high levels of rework may indicate problems with initial implementation, planning gaps, or unclear requirements.
- Why: Is GenAI helping improve our developer toil and quality across code bases

Appendix

Philosophy: the core principles of measuring AI adoption and impact

Throughput & quality are the true signals.

Not lines of code. Not time saved. What matters is:
are you shipping more value, with fewer mistakes?

Throughput & quality are a balancing act.

Moving faster is only a win if quality keeps up and you're going in the right direction.

Track value delivered, not hours eliminated.

AI ROI = features shipped, bugs avoided, and developer energy focused on high-leverage work.

Adoption is a journey, not a checkbox.

Think in mindsets, not headcounts. Developers fall on a spectrum between skeptical and embracing. Find both ends within your organization and understand their viewpoints.

Throughput alone ≠ value.

- Ori's anecdote: spent 2 months hunting an expensive memory leak. The fix was 1 line of code, yet the business value was immense.

Quality drives throughput.

- Context matters. Inputs shape outcomes.
- Encouraging better context engineering is as important as measuring output volume.

The adoption journey is a marathon, not a race.

-  Starting line: low context, iterating on outputs, delayed technical debt, and low resulting domain expertise.
-  Finish line: high context, iterating on inputs, preventing technical debt, and high resulting domain expertise.

Framework: Measuring Adoption & Impact

ADOPTION

Quantitative

- Understand users: Consume tooling APIs (e.g. Copilot, Claude, Cursor) in LinearB to learn:
 - # of active users
 - lines suggested vs accepted
 - coverage across org/team
- Understand usage: Use LinearB to label PRs based on co-authors, micro-surveys, defined user lists, or other strategies to fit your organization

Qualitative

- Deploy internal surveys across all engineers to capture initial sentiment
- Find the size and bounds of your organization's skeptical-embracing spectrum
- Surface use case anecdotes from identified adopters

IMPACT

Quantitative

- Establish a methodology:
 - Use gitStream to label & compare PRs between groups (AI vs. not)
 - Use an appropriate sample size, to draw conclusions for your organization
- Measure throughput:
 - PRs Merged (Merge Frequency)
 - Time to Merge (TTM)
- Measure quality:
 - PR Maturity
 - Rework Rate

Qualitative

- Internal surveys continue to capture sentiment
- gitStream prompts can surface developer feedback within individual PRs, to track edge cases for closer study

How it works today vs roadmap

TBD

GitStream Differentiator

- Only LinearB uses gitStream to label AI-generated PRs at the source.

This enables:

- Tool-to-tool comparison (e.g. Copilot vs Cursor)
- Ongoing tracking of quality in AI-labeled vs human PRs
- Workflow optimization through PR routing, reviews, and labeling logic

Looking at other details like...

Digital footprint: Co-authors (look at the commit/PR co-authors)

Philosophy

- What really matters
 - Throughput & quality
 - What's the currency? things gained (features, value, quality), not time/dollars saved
- Bug hunting for 2 months story
 - 1 line of code

Junior vs senior developer mindsets

- Junior: run with it, put out fires, iterate on outputs
- Sr: monitor performance, keep it out of bad loops, re-eval prompts, iterate inputs

Methods

Copy paste (slow, not agentic)

IDE

CLI

Cf. Zapier levels of AI:

- Unacceptable, resistant, capable, adoptive, transformative

Throughput matters but you must care for quality

Taking care to inputs: prompts

Devs have 2 clusters:

- Skeptical vs embracing(?)

Framework

- What really matters
 - Throughput & quality
 - What's the currency? things gained (features, value, quality), not time/dollars saved

How

- Ingesting inputs from tool APIs, showing adoption of the tools
 - What are the teams? The users?
 - Then tie this back to currency

Quantitative

Ori example

Qualitative

Survey Q's around AI

Adoption (proposed ROI) -> impact (real ROI)

Impact that matters to leadership: features, predictability

ROI for us: time saved in dollars

You should care about how fast your devs are adopting AI, are they:

- Never or occasionally using
 - Understand WHY (qual)
- Using daily

Balancing forces:

- Are you moving faster?
- Are you measuring the right things while moving faster?

Framework, cont'd.

Adoption

- Quantitative - API from Tooling
 - "many" number for lines accepted.
 - Coverage
And team coverage? Yes
 - Acceptance Rate
- Qualitative
 - Survey on question

Digital footprint: Co-authors (look at the commit/PR co-authors)

Much more to it than just generating code

Impact

- Quantitative
 - Throughput & quality
 - Through: PRs merged, TTM
 - Qual: PR maturity, rework
 - Methodology
 - Comparing groups of users (before)
 - Identifying AI PRs
 - gitStream rule-based labeling (automated & survey)

Framework: How We Measure AI Effectiveness

Adoption (proposed ROI) vs. Impact (real ROI)

Key Concepts

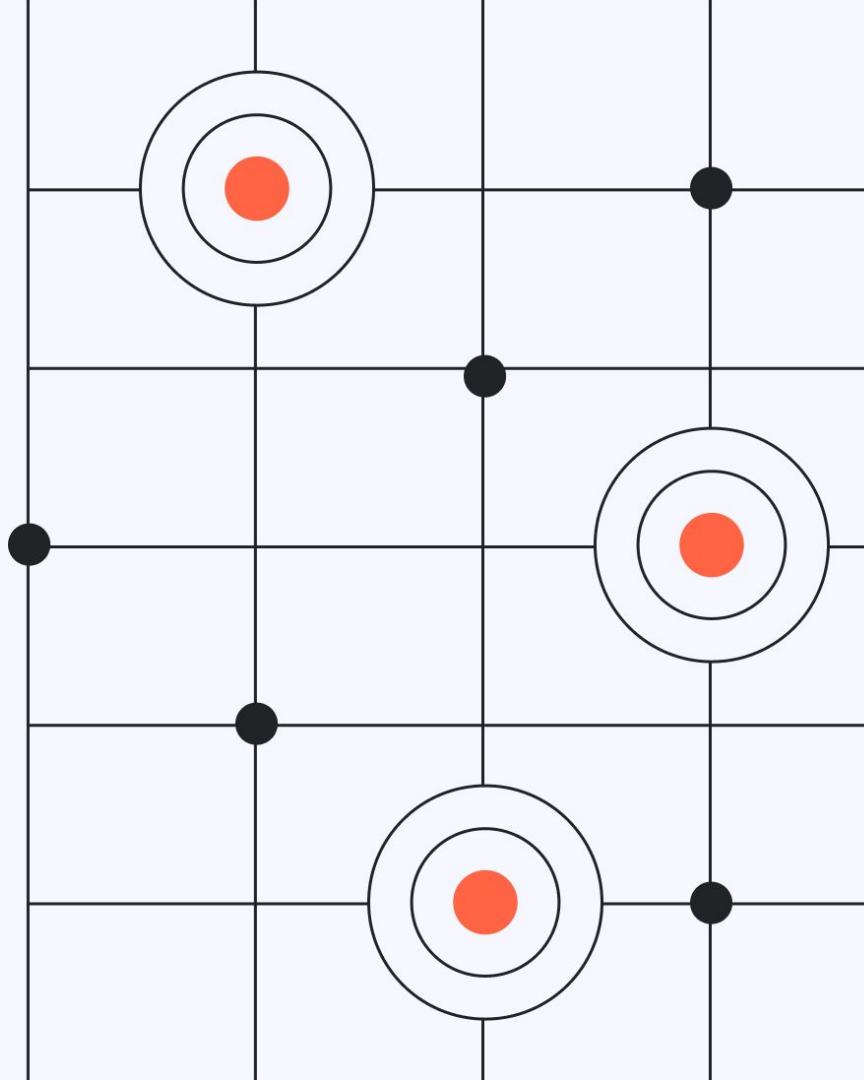

- Currency of Measurement = Features, Value, Quality
 - Not “time saved” or “dollars saved.”
 - Leadership wants to see product momentum, not spreadsheets.
- Balance Speed with Accountability
 - Moving faster is only a win if quality keeps up.
 - Moving faster is only a win if you’re going in the right direction.
- AI-powered teams need visibility into where it’s helping vs. where it’s hurting.
